Violent incidents increase in public schools, officials say

A preliminary Springfield Public Schools Public Safety Department summary of incidents investigated by school safety officers during the 1991-92 school year says:

In 1988-89, the total was $24.65. While educators say Springfield's discipline problems are mild compared to those in urban districts, behavior problems are definitely on the rise.

Facto, figures analyzed; solution still evades officers

By Robert Keyes

The case summary is presented on significant facts, information, concerns for further investigation and conclusions.

A young male friend of the girls has given various accounts of the events he recalls between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. on June 7.

Stiller, the son of the suspect, advised police officers that he had seen the suspect in the area several times and there is still a possible link.

Levitt, Streeter, McCall

ing the case as either controlled (CR) or resolved (RR) within said many of the unsolved cases have worked their way through the system.

There are unmet allegations that drive the geographic or real activity may have played a role in the disappearance.

As an angry picture frame was found in Streeter's bedroom. Can anyone tell police who may have been in that frame?

Levitt had $200 in a bank account. It was not clear whether the woman had other accounts.
